THE UNITED COUNTIES OF NORTHUME

The United Counties of Northumberland and Durham occupy a promiment and important geographical position on the map of the Province of Intario. They have a water frontage, or what may be called a coast-line, on the Lake They have a water frontage, or what may be called a coast-line, on the Lake They have a water frontage, or what may be called a coast-line, on the Lake They have a water frontage, or what may be called a coast-line, on the Lake They have the Arabors of Port Breighton and Presque Isle—all important shipping points. Rice Lake and the River Trent divide Northumberland from Peterboronglion the not in and north-west; it is bounded by the townships of Rawdon and Sidney, in the county of Haatings, on the east; and on the event by the township of Hope, in Durham. The shape of the county is that of an acute angle triangle—Rice Lake and the Trent forming the line explosite the tright angle. The extreme length north, or the perpendicular side of the triangle, is about 26 miles; the base, fronting on Lake Ontario, stead of the triangle, is about 26 miles; the base, fronting on Lake Ontario, extends some 36 miles from east to west. Durham is nearly a compact square, three townships wide and two in depth. The extreme length of the county-from lot 1, B. F. H., in Clarke, to lot No. 25, in the 14th concession of Manvers—may be stated at 25 miles; the breadth—from the town-line of Hamilton and Hope—at about 27 miles. Both counties are mysded into Rollings, each sending one member to the House of Commons ravided into Rollings, each sending one member to the House of Commons ravided into Rollings, each sending one member to the House of Commons ravided into Rollings, and and the townships of Marveys, favan all Hope, and town of Port Hope, the East Riding of Durham. DARLINGTON BOWMANVILLE.

EARLY SETTLEMENT.

DARLINGTON ROWMANVILLE.

The first actual settlement of Darlington took place in 1794. Induced by the land bounty of Licutemant-tiovernor Suncoe, many families from the United States made their way to the north shore of Like Ontario and pitched upon the most favorable locations along its banks. Among these were the families of John Bark, John W. Truli, and Roger Conari, who, in the fall of that year, landed near Barber's Creek, now Port Darlington, Bichard Lockin, an Irisalman from the conarty of Cork, came into the township of Clarke in 1796. Those were the earliest pioneers who settled down in the their impenetrable forcas. The Burks, Trulb and Consts came from the Susquelanna river, and their Journey to the new settlement is described as one of innumerable difficulties and household effects were placed on board a large open batteau, which was easied of the land of the lack. Tuminia into Boys and inlets to avoid guiring the night. Their stock, which consisted of a horse and two cows, were driven around the shore, and the folious journey, crossing wamps, creeks and marshes on the way may well be imagined. Those in charge of the boats having crossed the Niagara river into Canala, were received at Newark with great kindness by the Governor, who sent a man back to assist in binging around the shoks as far as Vork. The small band receils their distination in safety, after summanting all obsteeless, on the 2nd of the obst. Open hostilities were, as a general thing, avoided; and there is only on most one recorded of a white man being killed by the Indians, although most 1 the settlers were in considerable due of of them. There was, according to the their history, one man flur slotin links among them who did not share the string of an Indian by him for four in and who cany of them attempted to take liberts, would ten it by ground them a sound thrashing. According to all accounts, he did not recurry much provocation to do so, but the charming of an Indian by him was looked upon as a pleasant duty, which has as willing to perform on any occasion. The late Samuel S. Wilmot, of Clarke, settled in this country at an early date. He was born in the State of New York, at a place called the Nine Partners, in the year 1755. It is father, Lemuel Wilmot, emigrated to the Province of New Bennswick, and there settled with his family. The late Mr. S. S. Wilmot remained with his father until he was 21 years of age, when he migrated to Canada and settled in York. He there became acquainted with the late John Steigman, a German, and surveyor by profession. Mr. Wilmot served his time with him as a surveyor, and after a time married his daughter. He then engaged with him as a chain beaver. They were employed by the Government to survey the main road leading from Kingston to York. This road was cut four roads wide and grubbed two roods; it was constructed by Captain Danforth, and though being the main post road was a very indifferent one: during summer after very heavy rains it was almost impossable. The first mad carried over the road was taken on a mule, and arrived every two weeks from Kingston to Darlington. On the 3nd of April, 1816, Mr. S. S. Wilmon moved from Yong street, Toronto, to the township of Clarke the Danforth road was impossable through how known as the Wilmot Homestead, from John Hartwell. In this way they remain quiet, and are more easily retaken when ready for laying their eggs. When mature, a dozen or more of these fish are again transferred for safe keeping to the breeding room. The process of taking the ova from the fish and impregnating it is performed by litting from the tank a ripe female fish and holding her securely over a vessel and gently pressing her body with the hand, when the eggs flow freely from her. After this is done she is dropped into the raceway and liberated. A male fish is taken and operated upon in the same manner, the mile struded from him, and mixed with the eggs by gentle attring with the hand—causing immediate impregnation. The ova are then dipped out with a small ladle and put into measures made to contain one thousand eggs each. From this they are spread evenly on the hatching tays. These trays are made two feet long and ten inches wide, with a division in the centre, and hold four thousand eggs each. When filled they are earefully laid in the breeding troughs. After the ova are thus deposited they are closely watched and tegularly cleansed from sediment or other impurities which may settle upon them during the process of incubation. The troughs are each supplied with a constant flow of living water from tauks fed by the raceway, regulated in quantity by wooden tags. In the lower flat of the building there is a series of aquaria containing young salmon and other fish which are kept for observation and also for exhibition to the numerous visitors who frequent the establishment. The following is a memorandum of the eggs laid down in the several Canadian fish-breeding establishments during the automn of 1876:—

PORT HOPE.

PORT HOPE.

The history of the town which for more than half a century has home the name of Fort Hope extends over a period of about ninety years. A trading post flourished there at least as long ago as 1778, at which time the site was occupied by a small Indian village. The name of the village, which consisted of a number of wigwams, intabited by Mississauga Indians, was Cochingomink. The first white man who left any culturing monument of his presence there was one Peter Smith, a trader who dwelt in a log but on the bank of the creek which empties into Lake Ontario at this point. The but stood on the east side of the creek, about two lundred yards from the latter's mouth, and disappeared before the advent of the present century. Peter Smith in his day achieved some fame throughout this region as a hunter and trapper, but his ostensible calling was that of a fur trader. He enjoyed an envisible reputation among the Indians for fur trader. He enjoyed an envisible reputation among the Indians for fur trader. He enjoyed a monopoly of the trade. tham in the light of an advantage, they were free from many of the hindraness incidental to pioneer life in other parts of the Province. The situation of the rillage, clustered at the foot of the gently aloning hills, was charming. The woods about led with deer, rabbits, partridges, pigeons and other varieties of choice game; while the sparking stream which wound its devious course through their midst was full almost to overflowing with saimon and speckled trout. The greatest difficulty was to obtain flour; but even in this respect the settlers of Smith's Creek were privileged far beyond many primitive communities in Upper Canada. The lake was at their door, and a boat enabled them to reach Ringston—the site of the relief was a steam of the control of the site of the rille by a Mr. Myers shortened the distance to be traversed by about forty miles. By this time the land in and adjoining the village of Smith's Creek settlers had increased in number the demand for a local grist mill became imperative. In 1795 an attempt was made to construct one on the site of what has since been called Mill Street, but for some reason the attempt did not succeed, and it was not until three years afterwarks that a mill was completed. On the 26th August, 1797, a Crown Patent of the land on which the present town of Port Hope stands was grated to Elias Smith and Jonathan Walton, subject to the condition that the patentees should with all reasonable diligence erect a grist mill and a saw mill on the site. The condition was fulfilled and not long afterwards both mills were in full operation. The grist mill then erected was on the west side of Mill Street, on the site now occupied by challer in large mill. The saw mill was on the west side of Mill Street, on the site now occupied by them, under their patent, until the 26th July, 1815, when they divided the land between them, each giving a quit claim deed to the other for the portion relinquished.

Notwithstanding the beauty of its situation, the progress of Port Hope has at no time bee

The former name is applied to the westward eminence, the latter to the one on the east. The principal street is called Walton Street, in honor of Captain Jonathan Walton, one of the original patentees of the village plot. It runs east and west through the centre of the town, and nearly all the retail stores are situated upon it. A few, however, are to be found on John Street, which begins at a point near the railway station, and terminates at Walton Street. An eminence to the north-east is known as Ward's Hill, upon which is the fine building of rainity College School, the situation of which is just without the corporate limits of the town.

Previous to the breaking out of the American war, in 175, the Wallbridges sold the land held by them in Duchess, for gold. At the close of the war they bought land again in the same county. When Asa moved with his family to Canada, he remained at first in Prince Edward County, for a short time. He finally settled down in Clarke in 1819. He had what was then considered a nice little capital to begin with—$1,900 in gold. He bought 800 acres of land, at $2 per arce, (now worth $100 per acre), and lived on the old place at Newcastle up to his death in 1860, at the age of 78. He had many ancedotes of encounters with the Indians, and of adventures by flood and field on his first sottlement. Asa Wallbridge had three sons and one daughter. Of the sons two survive, Asa Forbes, and John, both residing in Newcastle. The third son, Elijah dici, and is represented by his son, the present postmaster at Newcastle, asa II. Cavan is a well-settled township, and contains excellent land. It is bounded on the north by the township of Emily, is the county of Victoria; west by Manyers, south by Hope, and east by South Monaghan and are of Peterborough. It is principally settled by natives of Ireland and their descendants. The early Irish settlers called the township in after the county of the same name in the north of Ireland. In 1850 the population numbered 4,198, and in 1861 4,500. Of these 450 were natives of Ireland and Wales, 73 natives of Scotland, and 1,181 natives of Ireland. The population, according to the last census, has been already given.

Mr. Stewart's recollections of the hirdships of early pioneer life would astonish some of the confortably settled young folk who drive to fair and market to-day over good roads behind a spanking pair of horses. In his day he was obliged to walk mine miles, fetch home a bag of flour upon ha back, over a rough pathway through the woods? Yet that was amongst the least of the hard experiences of Mr. Stewart. John Swain, whose portrait is also given on another page, is now 39 years old, and is another of the pioneers of Cavan. He was born in the County W. "That we and our tathers having been in a long sleep, have lately been roused up by the word of the tireat Spirit; our eyes are now open, and we see that there is light and truth by Jesus Christ for Indians as well as for our white brothers.

see that there is light and reach by desire to make strong and keep bright the chain of Christian friendship: the Christian religion binds up our hearts with our white brothers.

"That we believe that our Great Father the King is both wise and strong. He knows what is right, and has power to do it. He breaks the hard chains of the black man. It is his glory to defend the weak who look up to him. He is able to defend his red children, and to make bad men do then justice. But he is a great way towards the ining out, and knows not but our words may be lost in passing over the great water, and so never come to his ear. We speak to our brothers, who are called together around this Council dra by the King, to hear the words of his people. This Council can hear us.

Connections by the tangs, and the abuses that are done us by some white men; our hearts are true, and we will speak plainly. White men seize on our farms and take them from us by force—they abuse our women and violently beat our people.

"That your red brothers look for protection. We pray that the late abuses which we have suffered be inquired into. Some white men sell us we have no right to complain of rubberles on our hunters, and violence on our rooms. We believe you know; and if white men do not understand that red men have rights, that you will declare what our rights are, that bed men may be made to observe them.

"And that, furthermore, we are poor in lands, and have few places for hunting—much of our hunting grounds are covered by white settlements, and the small parts which are left us are invasied by the hunters from Lower Canada. They come upon our hunting grounds, and wantonly kill and destroy all the property of the property of Christianity and civilization have not done much in elevating the character of his indians of Ainwick and Rice Lake. They are, it is true, better protected in their rights, by the law; they have the advantage of a church and such mas their relations teaching, but they have not risen in the church and such mas their material prosperity been advanced. The civilization of the white brother has encroached around and about the Insian Reserve, which is looked upon with a coverous eye, and the red mar's occupation of so many valuable acres as a hindrance to the progress of the township.

If one could read, sign his own name and cast interest, it was looked upon as quite sufficient for a farmer. But gradually there sprung up an increased desire to acquire an education and a willingness to supply the means therefor. But what a change has time brought about, from the precariousness of securing an education then to the perfectability of our present school system! In the county of Durham there were in 1876, (the latest returns available) 108 school sections, e2 brick, I stone, I correct, 35 frame and two log school houses. The sum paid for teachers salaries amounts-it to 835, 183. The value of school buildings is set down at $91,461. Prizes to the value of $800 have been given in connection with the competitive examinations within the last three years. There are 46 public school libraries containing 3,273 volumes, and there are two Teachers' Associations, one for the East and one for the West Ridding of Durham, and a Teachers' Library in connection with the former. In Northumberland there are some 123 schools, and the figures for salaries, &c., exceed those for Durham by a small amount. And the general character of the schools, their appointments, and the qualifications and efficiency of the teachers are yearly improving and on the increase.

NEWSPAPERS.

Prospectuses were issued and several attempts made to start newspapers in Cobourg and Port Hope prior to 1830, but all were unsuccessful. On the 11th of January, 1832, Richard Dover Chatterton, the Deputy Clerk of the Crown at Cobourg, published the first number of the Cobourg Star. He continued the publication of the paper up to November 1846 where he sold out to Mr. H. J. Ruttan. The office passed from Mr. Ruttan to Messar Clench & Floyd and from them to the present proprietors, Messars. Piper & Wilson, in 1876. AGRICULTURAL SOCIETIES

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETIES.

The first preliminary steps for establishing an Agricultural Society for the county of Durham were taken in November 1830, by the issue of a subscription list circulated amongst those desirons of becoming members. The first meeting to elect office-bearers was held at Mr. Bletcher's tavern in December. David Smart was elected President, Jacob Choate, Treasurer, and Erasmus Fowko, secretary. The first general meeting was held at Wellington Inn, Port Hope, on the 20th of January, 1831, when the constitution of the Society was adopted. In 1832 Mr. Chvate was deputed inport thorough-bred cattle, and a number of pure Durham and other breeds were afterwards introduced by him and sold to members of the Society at cost. The same officer was also, in 1831 deputed to purchase seed wheat for the same purpose. He purchased one hundred bushels in the United States of white flint wheat, and a little quantity of red chalf wheat at Hamilton. Both proved a failure, being little adapted to the soil of the country. These were the first importations for agricultural improvements in the distinct of Newcastle.

Agricultural Societies for Northumberland and for the separate ridings of each county of Northumberland and Durham quickly followed. Every municipality has its Township Society, and there is also the Grand Central Exhibition now held periodically, at which thousands of dollars are given in prizes, and the display of hurses, cattle, sheep and all other kinds of stock and farmers' produce amount to thousands of entries in the various classes.
